Abstract:	This collection provides information about the history and activities of the Haverhill Old Ladies Home, later renamed the Stevens-Bennett Home.

Organizational History

Early in 1856, fourteen women chosen from the seven churches in Haverhill, Massachusetts, held a levee (an entertainment) to raise funds for charitable purposes. The group wanted to build a "home for aged women." The original name of the Ladies Charitable Society was changed in 1865 to Old Ladies Home Association. Their goal was to raise $20,000; they raised money from annual dues, memberships, festivals, and bequests. In 1875, George Stevens bequeathed $5000 to the organization and they decided to build a house at 337 Main Street.

On 18 October 1876, the home was dedicated, but only two floors were available. Later eleven men donated $600 so that the rooms on the third floor could be finished. In 1900, the northeast wing was added thanks to a bequest from the estate of Decatur Bennett and other gifts. In 1902, a much needed hospital room was added. There were then 23 women living at the Home. A hospital wing was added in 1908. The women who entered the Home were required to pay an entrance fee and in addition, they signed over to the Home all that they owned. In return, the Home took care of every need for the rest of their lives. The residents were involved with the actual work of caring for the Home, canning, and gardening.

The Community Chest was formed in Haverhill in 1942, and the Old Ladies Home Board of Managers voted to join it. The Home received funds yearly from it. In 1953, major renovations were completed. Due to state regulations, in 1973 it became necessary to close the infirmary and to become a “level 4” rest home. In 1976, it was decided to rename the Home, the Stevens-Bennett Home, in recognition of the philanthropy of George Stevens and Decatur Bennett. In 2017, the property was sold to Ivy Hill Court. As of 2021, the Home operates as an assisted living facility.

Scope and Content Note

This collection provides information about the history and activities of the Haverhill Old Ladies Home, later renamed the Stevens-Bennett Home. The collection is made up of ten series. Series one provides information about the history of the Stevens-Bennett House. Series two contains the charter and additional information about the charter. Series three contains twelve subseries; included are materials about the board, committee assignments, treasurer reports and agreements. Series four has the rules and regulations for the women. Series five has letters and correspondence to the home. Series six has listings of members. Series seven has programs from entertainments for the women or to raise money for the home. Series eight has two newsletters that the women put together. Series nine has newspaper clippings that provide an overview of the home and historical information. Series ten has one undated photograph of the Stevens-Bennett Home.
